A Level Religious Studies is not easy!

Not only are students expected to get to grips with a huge amount of detailed, challenging content, but they are also expected to make academic judgements, advance and defend scholarly arguments in response to all aspects of that content... and there just isn't enough time to do both!

Even when students know and understand the material, many students struggle to write good essays, and this stands in the way of them achieving C+ grades. Many students ask...

Is there a "right way" of writing an A Level essay?

What actually is an essay beyond being an extended piece of writing?

What is the most effective way to structure an essay in the exam?

Written and presented by experienced teacher and author Charlotte Vardy, this unique and popular online course answers these questions and aims to support students in improving their essay skills for A level Religious Studies as they move through the course.

- Students receive their own login details by e-mail, which provide access to the course from September 2024 through to the end of July 2025.
- Each of the 10 video-units lasts around 20 minutes, and comes with a range of practical activities to complete in a workbook.
- Students can work through the course at their own pace, but in total the course will take at least 4 hours to complete
- The course concludes with an online "theory-test", the results of which can be certificated.
